As the city continued its journey back from the tryptophan-induced doldrums of the holidays Wednesday, we were excited to see that the Web site for Kevin Rathbun Steak, the Atlanta chef's latest Inman Park creation, had suddenly gone live online. Here's what we were able to determine from the info posted at kevinrathbunsteak.com:

The 145-seat eatery is scheduled for an early spring debut. The Johnson Studio, which has already transformed the interiors at the chef's other two venues — Rathbun's and Krog Bar — is busy creating a space with dark hardwood flooring and a wood ceiling. The steakhouse will also have "the look of a modernized speak-easy where in the past, only the 'in the know' people would know where the place would be."
